

A critical and scary aspect of Lucifer

This image was created by Gustave More, as an illustration that was used in Milton's classic work: Paradise Lost. Here we see Lucifer on his way to bring the downfall of Adam; thus setting in motion the fall of the entire human race.

Much is known and written about in regards to the battle in Heaven that resulted in the expulsion of Lucifer and his doomed legion of wretched and ungrateful followers. In my very humble opinion, what is not so well known, is the following spiritual dynamic that was revealed to me for purposes of lifting my own faith even higher, and more importantly, to share with others so they too find the strength to win this war against our common formidable enemy:

The distance from heaven by Lucifer, following his expulsion by God, is not like the distance from the earth to the moon, or even the distance from the earth to the next solar system, the distance is INFINITE. He is therefore STILL falling; never to reverse direction!

What does this mean to us and to our world?

Since he is still falling, he is, from a gravity-like force, accelerating on his way down; tightening his grip on those he has, while reaching out for all of us. This in turn equates into our world becoming more and more distant from GOD, more and more troubled and more and more poised for self destruction.

Do these conditions sound familiar?

DO NOT LET HIM GRAB YOU ALONG THE WAY;
AS HE CONTINUES TO DESCEND!
